Type I

Type II

1d. Type I — Greek letters "Λ," "Α," "Δ" have sharp pointed tops; numerals "1" are 1 1/2mm wide at the foot, and have a straight slanting serif at top.
 1d. Type II — Greek letters "Λ," "Α," "Δ" have flat tops; numerals "1" are 2mm wide at foot and the serif at top is slightly curved. Perf. 14.
 There are many minor differences in the lines of the two designs.

1d. Type III — The "1" in lower left corner has no serif at left of foot. Lines of temple have been deepened, so details stand out more clearly.
 2d. On 1927 stamp the Parthenon is indistinct and blurred. On 1933 stamp it is strongly outlined and clear. Between the two pillars at lower right are four blocks of marble. These blocks are clear and distinct on the 1933 stamp but run together on the 1927 issue.

3d. Design is clearer, especially vertical lines of shading in smoke stacks and reflections in the water. Two or more sides perf. 11 1/2.
 10d. Background and shading of entire stamp have been lightened. Detail of frame is clearer and more distinct.
 15d. Many more lines of shading in sky and foreground. Engraving is sharp and clear, particularly in frame. Two or more sides perf. 11 1/2.

25d. Background has been lightened and foreground reduced until base of larger upright column is removed and fallen column appears nearly submerged.
 Sizes in millimeters:
 50 l, 1927, 18x24 3/4. 1933, 18 1/2x24 1/2.
