Iran

SNAIL-LIKE in shape alone, Iran bustles with energy. She holds much in common with her Arab neighbors, but her people are Aryans—Indo-Europeans who migrated from the Asian heartland in the second millennium B.C.

Greek influence waned after the death of Alexander the Great at Babylon in 323 B.C., and Persia entered a 2,000-year period of rule by a succession of invaders interspersed with native dynasties. Arabs in A.D. 636 introduced Islam. Today, after surviving countless wars, Iran has regained a level of national stability comparable to that of her long-ago empire.

AREA: 636,293 sq. mi. POPULATION: 32,000,000. ECONOMY: Oil, grains, wool, cotton, tobacco. MAJOR CITIES: Tehran (pop. 3,500,000), capital; Tabriz, Isfahan, Shiraz, Abadan. CLIMATE: Dry, windy on plateau; subtropical on Caspian; hot along Persian Gulf.
