ELECTRIC EYE PLATES

The principle of the photo-electric perforator^r or Electric eye is as follows: The vertical perforations are controlled by a dual scanning head in which are photoelectric cells that watch both sides of the series of vertical dashes.

The identifying characteristics of the Electric Eye stamps are mainly in the marginal markings and by the position of the plate numbers on the sheets. Although there is no change in the stamp design itself, mint stamps can be identified by the gum breaker marks. These are approximately $7/32$ inches apart. There is about one half the distance of the gum breaker mark on other ordinary printings. Each plate of 400 subjects has 41 vertical dashes, running midway between the panes of 100 stamps in the center vertical gutters which controls the vertical perforations.
